THE LAW'S STRONG ARM.

Grand Jury Indictments Followed by Several Arrests.

Persons Charged With Conspiracy to Defraud the State.

Rice and Weber Both Avoid Arrest by Being in the East.

Latest Developments in the General Assembly Scandal.

Charged With Defrauding the State

DENVER, July 18.—Warrants were issued to day on the indictments returned by the grand jury last night for the arrest of Geo H Graham of Graham & Weber, W H. Lawrence & Co Secretary of State James Rice and Collier & Cleveland The indictments charge them with conspiracy to defraud the state

Graham & Weber is the firm who furnished the furniture for the legislative halls. Lawrence & Co furnished the stationery supplies while Collier & Cleveland are the public printers

Secretary Rice and Sheriff Weber are now in the east and will not be arrested until their return. The others were arrested to day and gave bail in sums ranging from one thousand to twenty-five hundred dollars.

Sale of the Alton.

NEW YORK, July 19.—All day yesday Wall-street was kept busy with reports of conferences of railroad officials and bankers and after the close of the exchange it was stated that the sale of the Chicago and Alton to the Missouri Pacific had been completed and the first deposit of the purchase money to the amount of $20,000,000 has already been made. The rumors carried additional weight from the fact that Vice President McKullon was already in this city and that Chairman Walker of the Interstate Association and General Manager Clark of the Missouri Pacific are expected every hour.

The probability that the Missouri Pacific would control the road caused a sharp decline in the Richmond terminal, which company extended the Georgia Pacific and made a connection with the Gould system, on the understanding that it would be given all the business east of the Mississippi. Jay Gould who is credited with holding 50,000 shares of Richmond terminal, is said to have sold out his interests in that company.

Missouri River Agency.

CHEYENNE RIVER AGENCY, Dak., July 18.—After considerable discussion in the council to day General Crook brought out the lists and invited the Indians to sign. Two painted Indians sprang to the front, one of them brandishing a large club, and threatened to brain anyone who signed. General Crook stood near with his hand on a heavy chair prepared to knock the Indian down at the first hostile demonstration, when the latter was arrested by the police and hurried out of the pavilion.

General Crook told the Indians that if they wanted to sign they should be permitted to do so regardless of the threats of anyone. Matters were in a bad shape he thought if a lot of breech clouted, blanket Indians who had just come on the reservation and cared for nothing so long as they got enough to eat were allowed to prevent those Indians who were trying to provide for the future of their children from signing. If the police could not stop it he would bring men there who could. He wanted it distinctly understood that those who wanted to sign would be protected

Signatures were taken rapidly for an hour and are continuing slowly. There were 100 signatures up to 5 p m

The Missing Air Ship.

NEW YORK, July 18.—An incoming pilot boat's crew reports that on the 16th in lat 39.30, long 71.40, they sighted a balloon dragging a car along the surface of the water. They gave chase, but at sun down when about three quarters of a mile from it the balloon collapsed and disappeared. It is supposed to be the missing air ship

There seems to be no longer any reason to doubt that Hogan the aeronaut is dead The captain of the pilot boat says that the last thing he saw was the balloon getting from the basket and sailing away. The basket sank and he cruised where it went down but could find nothing Hogan was 40 years old and had made over 400 ascensions and 33 parachute jumps in the 28 years during which he has followed the dangerous business He was regarded as the foremost aeronaut of the world Some of his friends still hope he may be alive even if injured and landed in some out of the way place

Dividends.

NEW YORK, July 18.—The Northern Pacific directors held their regular monthly meeting to day but failed to declare the expected dividend on preferred stock They took steps however to frame a promise of a dividend similar to that made in 1887, when the stockholders waived their rights under the reorganization and consented to the issue of a third mortgage

To day the deal was to be effected, and it was developed that the notorious character Joe Guyon for whom the government has been looking for five years, brought the bogus money here for delivery

While a secret service officer named John S Bell was in the hotel eight other detectives surrounded the building to arrest the gang Guyon remained in hiding in the woods and as soon as he discovered that a trap had been laid for him he began to retreat, firing as he ran through the thicket The officers returned the fire and forty shots were thus discharged Officer O'Donnell, of Virginia, was shot on the right side of the head but not fatally. Guyon escaped though it was thought he was wounded Nelson Driggs, who is an old offender, and his wife and Mrs Mary Brown are under arrest and Officer Bell secured $25,000 bogus money.

The contract for the erection of the new Mute and Blind institute was let yesterday. The bidders were numerous and considerable interest was taken in the matter by persons connected with the stone trade There was present at the opening of the bids all of the architects of the board of commissioners, Mr. Roerchlaub the architect of the building, and superintendent Ray. The lowest bidder was the firm of D. W. Atkinson & Son of this city, and they were awarded the contract for $28,684. The bids ranged from that up to $44,000 Following is a list of the bids.

The commissioners are greatly pleased with the way in which the work has progressed so far on the buildings, and state that they are building them much cheaper than they at first anticipated. The main building which it was thought would cost $65,000, will be built for $50,000. The successful bidders will be required to give a bond of $20,000 as a guarantee for the proper completion of the work

The adjourned session of the district courts will begin next Tuesday and probably last some two weeks, with both Judge Campbell and Judge Decker presiding. There will be three juries; the regular jury which held over, and two special juries of six which under the eminent domain act are required to try the two condemnation suits growing out of the Rock Island right of way into the city.

It is stated that the handsome residence on the corner of Pike's Peak and Nevada avenues, owned by Mr W H Earle, is to be moved to Mayfair addition early in the fall, to make room for the large building that Mr. Earle proposes to erect on that site It is altogether probable that the new building will take the form of a hotel, but that is not yet settled

R. W. STRAHAN,
Manager of the Gazette.

President Slocum's whole time while east was devoted to the interests of Colorado College, and he has accomplished a great deal in placing the claims of our college before the people of the east most interested in education. During his stay he travelled some six thousand miles and delivered twenty addresses. Among those whom he addressed, were the Home Missionary society at its annual meeting, the alumni of Amherst and meetings in Boston, Providence, Hartford and many other places. He found his eastern hearers willing to listen, and awaken and sympathetic in many that is likely to bring us substantial assistance. The college has [illegible] just such representation at the east as this in order to awaken proper interest. Very little money was obtained, but the more important result was the awakening of interest among the class who prefer to give of their generous fortunes to charitable institutions. A small amount, however, was subscribed by one party, (who is likely to add to his subscription,) to start a scientific school.

Governor Cooper's letter, which we published on Wednesday morning, is received with great favor throughout the state. When the receipt first became the question naturally come what is to be done with it? The legislature was not in session and there was no opportunity for investigation. The question has been answered, first, by Governor Cooper, who has started in the right course to obtain any facts that have been improperly taken from the state, and, second by the grand jury which proposes to ferret out facts that have escaped Governor Cooper in the action that he took upon no judgment on any facts but there had been no official investigation or report. But the charges were so serious and the presumption of guilt so strong that he has brought the matter to the attention of the attorney general. It was proper that he should do this in order that the treasury and the rights of the people should be protected. He could do this also without any selfish motive being ascribed to him. He has not been identified with any clique and [illegible] this—[illegible] without fear or favor in the interest of justice.

We publish three [illegible] letters this morning on the water question. Capt. DeCourcey need not have defended himself. His generous public spirit and hearty interest in everything for the good of the city are too well known. He has always put the interests of the city at large before his own. But it is also worth considering that the council is not always composed of the same members. Of the present council the majority are new members, and the majority having his first term. When they entered upon their duties they found [illegible] voted and a plan found for the addition to our water supply. They [illegible] simply asked to carry those plans out. The plans were not novel, but have been discussed for two years and have been generally approved. The unfortunate difficulty with Manitou which was not anticipated has delayed the progress of work. The present council is hardly to blame for this. But the letter of Capt. DeCourcey has brought the whole matter in a forcible way before the people. While insisting on all our rights to the water in Ruxton creek ought we not to think about adding to our supply from other sources? It is much better with 12,000 population to have a water supply for 40,000 than to wait until we have 40,000 and then it is difficult to get a supply for 30,000. There is only one obstacle now to our growth to a large city and that is a water supply. It is better to anticipate the future and have a sure water supply available for 50,000 than to try to simply have enough for our present needs.

The report of the grand jury, which we published yesterday morning, will be read with intense interest by every citizen. The most cheerful feature of it is what is shown of the state of the public conscience. There had been a general impression that there has been malfeasance in office. But there has been no disposition to take hold and punish those who were guilty. If the grand jury's report had been nothing but its recommendations it would have been an exercise. It would have done a [illegible] The report would have been [illegible] interesting and more valuable if it had some of the data upon which it based its conclusions. The want of it has led the grand jury, slightly into some inaccuracies. For example, it speaks of the charges for stationery as unnecessarily high and that the bid made when the contract was let was higher than the market price at that time. We hardly think this can be fully substantiated, as many of the articles on these bills furnished by Lawrence & Co. were at a price less than market price, while others would be considered a low wholesale price. These bills are rather to be criticised for the quantity furnished than for the prices. The grand jury is to be commended for the determination it has shown to get to the bottom of these extravagances. It probably in its report gave little of the evidence, or the names of the individuals and firms concerned which were to follow. But grand juries do not care to give the evidence that they have given or to take the blame that this one has taken. Their report must be received and endorsed by the people of those who have claimed that there has been [illegible] and that the state treasury has been robbed, and the blame of the [illegible] are due to in all those who have contributed to the extent [illegible] and also to the grand jury, which has so conducted investigation that those who have done wrong are likely to suffer. There is no danger from now on. Public servants will realize that it is a dangerous thing not only to steal, but from good nature to allow others to steal.

The Water Supply Question.

To the Editor of the Gazette:

Without considering the sins of omission and commission of past city councils in regard to water supply, and that they are many is pretty generally believed, let a practical view be taken of the present state of things and what is being done by the present city council. The capacities of the various sizes of pipe, [illegible] squares of their divisions. The pipe laid supplied at the present time by our system of water works is probably 12,000. This supply is barely sufficient, it may be said for this population. It is supplied through an eight inch pipe, for, although this eight-inch pipe connects with a ten inch pipe, this ten inch pipe may be considered as a branch of Ruxton creek and the supply is the same as if the eight inch pipe connected actually with Ruxton creek. Were a ten inch pipe substituted for the eight inch pipe the increase of supply would be a little more than one half, or as much greater as 100 is than 64, barely sufficient for a population of 17,000 or 18,000. Were a 16 inch pipe substituted for the 10 inch and the eight inch pipe, that is throughout the whole line, the increase of supply would be as 256 is to 64, just four times, sufficient for a population say, of 40,000 people. To present assurance it is intended to connect the 16 inch pipe with the 10 inch pipe which connects with Ruxton creek, unless it is decided in court that the 16 inch pipe may be extended to Ruxton Creek. How much will this connection of the 16 inch pipe with the 10 inch pipe increase the supply? A little more than one half. For, in that case, the 16 inch pipe may be considered as a part of the reservoir, and the supply will be the same as if the 10 inch pipe emptied into the reservoir itself barely sufficient for a population of 17,000 or 18,000. Can these statements be gainsaid? Is it not perfectly clear, self-evident, that it is not enough to connect the 16-inch pipe with the 10 inch pipe, or even to extend the 16-inch pipe to Ruxton creek, for it is the opinion of many that Ruxton creek is not sufficient for future supply. Is it not the imperative duty of the city authorities to secure a sure, unfailing supply to obtain other sources of supply whether it be to create a storage reservoir of [illegible] gallons, or by other means. Several additions of land have of late been made to the city, and there are now plats of other additions to be platted, which, together with the former city limits, are sufficient for a population of 100,000 people: is it too much to say that the city authorities should act as if so large a population were to be supplied with water, or, in other words, to act to obtain an inexhaustible supply?

R. S. W.

Colorado Springs, July 18, 1889.

To the Editor of the Gazette.

It is hardly necessary to show the intelligent readers of the Gazette, where Mr. Sprague's letter in to-day's issue, begs the question entirely. In the beginning he imputes a selfish motive to me, which [illegible] he would probably not have done, guilty of had he lived here long enough to know me better. If he will [illegible] to see that this city is sufficiently supplied with water during the remainder of his aldermanic term and will do his duty towards providing for our future water supply, I will cheerfully deposit to Mr. Ira G. Sprague all the rental I receive from the Nettleton company for the use of my Tejon street lots.

As for the remainder of Mr. Ira G. Sprague's letter, it is throughout frivolous and estimated by a view of levity which does not become the gravity of the situation. Mr. Sprague does not at all cover the points I made in my recent letter to your paper, but he seems to be satisfied with the little brief glory conferred by the utterance of a quip, a smart jest, a flippant retort. He does not appreciate the grave water situation in the serious frame of mind that would better become a member of the council board of our city, whose future is unfortunately imperiled by just such levity of conduct where grave consideration is needed.

I intended the discussion of this water question because I imagined the time had come when all men who loved our city as I do, should have their eyes opened to the peril of the situation. I care nothing to answer in Mr. Sprague's letter. I do not intend to enter into any personal controversy. I don't believe the public cares about my income, nor how I get it, so long as it comes to me lawfully, and so long as, in acquiring it, I at the same time aid in beautifying and building up the city, in adding to its industries, and giving work to its artisans. Mr Sprague's letter has fully demonstrated the truth of my insinuation that some of our councilmen, at all events, do not comprehend the gravity of our present position, or else are not competent to master it, and that it is high time for those of our citizens who really have the future of our lovely city at heart, to step into the breach. If I have excited an interest in this question which will result in the procurement of an adequate present water supply, and a wise provision for the future, my object has been attained. I am looking solely to the good of our city, and Mr Sprague cannot escape from his predicament by making it or trying to make it, appear otherwise. Those who know me well know better than to give ear to his insinuations.

Yours Respectfully,

M. L. De Courcey.

To the Editor of the Gazette.

I [illegible] that you kindly offer your columns for a full discussion of the water question and perhaps no [illegible] important one occupies the attention of citizens or of the city government. I read with interest the communication of Capt. DeCourcey in your issue of the 15th. No man has been more [illegible], enterprising and [illegible] in building and promoting plans for the development and improvement of our city than he, and I felt that any [illegible] made by him were entitled to [illegible] consideration. The captain is an [illegible] man and he arraigned our [illegible] city fathers with warmth for what he believes a dangerous delay in seeking and securing an additional water supply, a neglect of his [illegible] and a feeble and inefficient administration in that regard. It has not been my privilege to be [illegible] with you for the last three years or to share in the labors that have so [illegible] the town and [illegible] to its growth and prosperity. Nor am I well advised as to what measures are being considered by the [illegible] authority, to supply the much felt want of more water, so I am not quite prepared to endorse all the charges made against them [illegible] what vigorously by the worthy captain; but certainly, [illegible] ring the great need, yes, the necessity of increased water supply to the future growth, and the convenience and healthfulness of the present population the council should be held to the greatest degree of diligence—the exercise of all their skill and energy and the employment of all the means at their command to obtain at the earliest practicable day, such supply. Its first and important use will be, of course, for domestic purposes, then to maintain a sufficient head and volume for extinguishing fires; then, perhaps, for irrigating lawns and flower beds, adding to the attractiveness of the place; and a commodious, well appointed sanitarium would greatly increase the cleanliness, health, [illegible] and well being of citizens and strangers and add to our reputation as a health resort and home for invalids. It would indeed be a valuable improvement well worthy of encouragement. And a most important use in my judgment of any available water supply would be the sprinkling of our streets, thereby laying the clouds of dust so hurtful to invalids and annoying to all. Two thousand miles away I have heard our dust and dusty streets discussed and complained of as a discouraging and damaging feature of our otherwise delightful town, and I trust our present council who are doing such commendable work in the way of improvement are awake to this one crying evil of our condition and considering methods of removing it.

I have no personal acquaintance with your correspondent, Mr Sprague. He has come here I believe or become eminent in your midst, for I suppose he is a member of your council, in my absence. Not many will sympathize with his aspersion of Captain DeCourcey's motives in his praiseworthy effort to arouse public attention to a proper appreciation of the great need of additional water supply. The captain has lived here too long and been too active, liberal and public spirited in promoting the improvement of the town to be whistled down by a comparative stranger, however high his character or high his ability. It does not seem to me that the council, placed in their responsible position by the votes of the people on account of their fitness and worthiness for the important trust, are indifferent to the public needs and requirements. Much has been thrown upon them by the rapid growth and extension of our town, and much has been accomplished by a vigorous and faithful discharge of their duty. If mistakes have been made and errors committed in the past, they are doubtless aware of it, and the hope may be confidently entertained that this water question will in the future receive its full share of their earnest attention.

H. A. Brewer.

Colorado Springs, July 18, 1889.

New York, July 18.—The stock market was weak to day but under the bear attacks it became more active and prices ran off materially, though a large portion of the loss was regained towards the close. The market was irregular at the start and under liquidations of long stocks a weak and feverish tone was imparted and the sugar trust led off with a drop of 1 per cent. Towards noon the bears made their great attack of the day and the first point was Oregon Trans-Continental which quickly dropped from last night's sale of 32, to 28¾. The attack was extended to other Villard stocks and the ease with which other stocks yielded encouraged attacks upon grangers and coalers and Missouri Pacific, St. Paul, Union Pacific, Lackawanna were all forced off 1 per cent., the lowest prices being generally reached by 2 o'clock. At that time a rumor was circulated that negotiations for the purchase of the Burlington and Northern by the C. B. & Q. had been concluded and the tide was immediately turned in an upward direction. The reaction was sharp and the close was active and strong generally at fractions under the first figures. The only important change is a drop of 2¼ in Oregon Trans-Continental.

The French Defeat.

London, July 18.—In the commons this afternoon Stanhope, secretary of war read the reply of Nad El Juma the dervish leader in Egypt in response to the demand of General Grenfeld for his surrender. Nad El Juma says: "Your force is nothing to me. I have been sent to conquer the world. I cannot stop now. I call upon you to surrender. I will protect you. Remember Hicks and Gordon." General Grenfeld states that the dervishes are well fed and in a good condition.

BASE BALL

Another Easy Victory for the Colorado Springs Ball Team

The home club won an easy victory from Leadville yesterday afternoon by a score of fourteen to six The playing of the home boys was fine and their errors few Every position on the field was well protected and nicely played

Fitzgerald, in the pitcher's box pitched his usual first class game Four strikeouts are credited to him and they were well earned for each of them was made at a critical point. He was supported in fine style by Lytle, who was frequently applauded for difficult catches Valelly and Lynch played unusually well in their positions Every man on the nine is credited with one or more unusually good plays

At the bat the Springs boys were getting in their usual heavy work Lytle and Lynch were unfortunate at this point They both drove the ball around the diamond but were unable to score base hits Newman, Glenalvin, Breckinridge and Valelly were the heavy hitters The first named made four base hits, Valelly three, Glenalvin two and Breckinridge two. Glenalvin made two double baggers and Newman, Breckinridge and Valelly each one Only six base hits were made on the Leadville side, Goldie and Cooley making two each

The playing of the Leadville nine was fair, with the exception of third base, which was very weak. Pears and Whyte the battery did fair work but were not supported properly.

The umpiring of Walsh was open to frequent criticism In the seventh inning he used very poor judgment on a play at second base, which let in the first of the four runs scored in that inning by Leadville. Glenalvin deserves credit for a play he made yesterday. Breckinridge was compelled to run several yards off first base to stop a ball while the batter was running toward the base. The ball was coming so slowly that Breckinridge could not run to the base with the ball in time to catch the runner. Glenalvin saw the situation and ran up to first where Breckinridge threw the ball in time to catch the runner. A second baseman, who covers the ground up to first base, is certainly rare, and the audience appreciated Glenalvin's work yesterday.

During the [illegible] inning the wind and rain interfered with the playing considerably, which accounts for the four runs made by Leadville At the end of the inning the rain drove the players off the field for a short time After playing was resumed the Springs made five runs and the Leadvilles none. Modjeska will appear at the opera house to-morrow evening, supported by the Booth and Barrett company. The Aspen Times in speaking of her engagement in that city says "It may be, it probably will be, many a long day before an Aspen audience will again have an opportunity to see such a wonderful performance as that which was witnessed at the Wheeler opera house last evening The play given was Adrienne Lecouvreur, with Modjeska as Adrienne, Lawrence Hanley as Maurice de Saxe and John A Lane as Michonnet The plot of the play is simple but full of startling situations Adrienne is a favorite actress at a Parisian theatre She falls in love with one whom she believes to be a poor officer but who turns out to be Maurice de Saxe a famous general Saxe returns her affection He is really loved by the Princess de Bouillon, whose husband though rich and powerful, is [illegible] The jealousy of Saxe [illegible] favors bestowed She discovers his attachment to Adrienne and determines to rid the world of her honest rival With horrible cunning she presents a bouquet which is sent to Adrienne with the information that it is from Saxe The innocent victim pressed the roses to her innocent lips and is poisoned by them She had labored under the belief that Saxe was false to her having discovered the affection of the princess for him and observed the power that she held over him The parroxysms of Jealousy depicted were wonderful and as scene succeeded scene Modjeska was called before the curtain [illegible] again to acknowledge the applause of the audience."
